

	LEARN – Doing your best to learn
Rec	It is good to learn and it is good for our well-being It is great to learn new stuff. We are starting on our fun school learning path. Learning makes you feel good.
Y1	To do my best to learn and listen to adults I learn lots of new skills in school I am learning to read, write and use numbers I listen to the adults, who all want me to do well
Y2	I am in charge of my learning I learn by listening with care, thinking carefully and wanting to do my best I can work by myself, with partners and in groups I like to give new things a go and understand that sometimes I will make mistakes
Y3	I understand how learning works I can talk about what I have learnt in the past and how that links to what I am learning now. With help from adults I know what I can do well and what areas I can improve. I react well to feedback and understand that making mistakes are part of the learning process.
Y4	I can talk about and explain my learning process I can use and explain the methods I use for different learning tasks and problems. I can confidently talk to my friends about my and their work. I can give and accept critique to celebrate our successes and to advise and accept advice on how we can get better.
Y5	I have ownership of my learning and have grown in independence I can organise my own learning with less reliance on others and conduct my own research and revision. I can see how topics connect with each other and see learning as being connected. I know that subject knowledge is built separately but I can talk about how learning can be linked across subjects. For example in science and maths we both predict, analyse and problem solve to come to conclusions.
Y6	I have good metacognitive skills This means I am able to plan, monitor and evaluate my own progress through a task. I can think strategically about how to solving a problem and can articulate my thought process. I am starting to think about how learning in primary Schools connects to the next stage of my own learning journey and impacts on my life choices. I am preparing for secondary school, knowing that being committed to learning will mean that I will know more, remember more and as a result give myself the best chances to make a good future for myself.
Rights and Responsibilities	To learn and allow others to learn
